In this Photoshop Beginners Guide, we explain the basics of Photoshop, from using the tools to creating a customized workspace. You can find out the options that come with this software by accessing Photoshop's features. If you want to use Photoshop Lightroom for your photography, use the same steps to import, edit, and publish your images. Photoshop Uses a Layered System to Edit Images Photoshop files are made up of layers, and the more layers you have on top, the more the image is manipulated. When you open a file, you can see the following layers: The layers are listed in the order they appear in the file. For example, most images have a background layer on top and adjustments or adjustments layers (usually the last one in the file) below. You can easily add and remove layers, which can enable you to make changes throughout your image. How to Open a File If you're opening a file for the first time, you should select Open from the File menu. If you're opening a file for the first time, you should select Open from the File menu. Otherwise, you may have already opened the file and simply need to close it. In the dialog box, select a file and click OK. Photoshop reads the file and creates a new, blank canvas where you can work. You also get the following options: Save the file as a new or existing Photoshop document. You can also open a file in Photoshop Elements as an RGB image. You can open a file in Photoshop Elements as an RGB image. Photoshop Elements Will Convert Your File to a Photoshop Document You can import files directly to Photoshop Elements. Just open the file and click Import. Pages Wednesday, March 9, 2013 March Cleanse Interview: Lukka Rudzicz Artist and Educator A reader of The Inspiration Room shared Lukka Rudzicz's work with us and we were so taken with it we had to invite her to be one of the interviewees for our inaugural March Cleanse. She was kind enough to give us her permission to share this personal story with you today. Lukka Rudzicz About the Artist: "Lukka Rudzicz" was born in September 27, 1987, in a small town near Warsaw. At the age of 5, she had her first ballet lesson. She started to teach herself as a young girl. As she was fond of painting, drawing, and literature, she started to attend art lessons at the age of 12. Two years later, she attended the art school in Warsaw. There she studied for a year at the A.B.U. School of Art. At the age of 16, Lukka abandoned her studies and started working as a model in Warsaw and surrounding towns. She worked in the modeling studios of Da'V, and Model Shops. Being fascinated by advertising, Lukka was trying to get into it at the age of 18. So she took a job as a model in a clothing store of a popular advertising agency. That was the first major advertising work of Lukka's. She worked for a year on production of commercials for the international brand market. After her first work on advertising, Lukka experienced an inspiration and decided to devote herself to painting. Now she is striving to get the best from her creative inspiration and push the limit of the possible with her paintings. She is not afraid to stretch the boundaries of the style and colors she likes. She really loves to experiment with colors, use of patterns, and experimenting with different materials. She finds inspirations in the art of Great Masters of the XXth Century. Her inspiration for her work includes acrylic painting, pen and pencil drawing, and watercolor techniques. She loves to play with paint and does not restrict her work to just paintings. She creates also artworks on glass, ceramic, paper, canvas, and wood. Today, Lukka is working on her art in Montclair, New

Wednesday, April 9, 2011 Life and Love at Sea Another thing that I don't think I'll ever get used to is living on a boat. I've been at sea for about a year now and it's been a long journey since I sold the condo and headed out into the open seas. I'll never forget the first time I stood on my deck and looked across the ocean. It was an amazing feeling to be out there in nature. So, I've been looking forward to our summer adventures to see the beauty and learn more about the sea. The first few days were quite busy. We had a visitor show up to board our boat on the morning of our 30th day. He wasn't able to get away from work for the next two weeks so we welcomed him with open arms. He brought some stowaways with him that he captured while working at the local crab trap. It was a great time to reconnect with family members and friends that we hadn't seen for a while. I even got to have a little bit of an adventure. The second week was a bit slower. I had almost every afternoon booked with my trainer, the trainer for some of the kids I teach, and a couple of my classes. This week will be much more active for me and the kids as we head down the coast to San Diego. Here are some of my favorite pictures from this past week.The present invention is directed generally to an apparatus for evaluating semiconductor integrated circuits, and more particularly to a memory leak identification and repair apparatus. The testing of integrated circuits (ICs) can be a time consuming and expensive process. For example, not only is it possible for an IC to provide only a limited amount of functionality, but if the IC malfunctions during manufacture or use, it may be difficult to isolate the source of the malfunction. One IC testing technique is to evaluate and identify IC defects during manufacture. For example, integrated circuit devices can include memory circuits such as random access memories (RAMs), read only memories (ROMs) and programmable read only memories (PROMs). The IC can be tested after manufacture by performing a memory stress test using predetermined data patterns. The defects can be correlated with data patterns, utilizing storage elements of the IC for storing the pattern, for example, as output logic levels. However, multiple input pattern generators are generally required and the testing process can consume a significant amount of time. Another technique is to employ an apparatus having a memory
