Comparing two files and detecting differences and similarities among them is a quick, simple and easy-to-use program that can be run directly from the Windows Explorer. The main window of the program is divided into two sections. On the left side, you will find the source file, while on the right side is the target file. Within each section, you can navigate between the lines using the "Previous" and "Next" buttons. On the other hand, on the top of the main window, a tree view allows you to see the entire files together. Now, when you are looking at one of the files, you can minimize the program and operate from your other programs. You can also bring the program back by using the dock icon. Within the toolbar, you can use the mouse to either minimize, maximize or close the window. The results of the comparison are presented in an intuitive way, and you can generate a report in the form of HTML, TXT, or even PDF. The report can be used in order to know whether the changes from one file to the other are significant or not. Alternatively, you can compare the contents of each line of your documents, and thus get a complete report. You can also use the "Edit File" option to make changes on the documents. If you activate this option, you can see a new window, in which you can merge certain sections of the documents, such as a certain section of the document, some comments, or even an entire section of the document. As you can see, there are only 5 different colors to choose from and these are used to identify both similar lines and differences. In addition to that, the colors indicate whether the changes are textual or not. Like we said before, this program consists of an intuitive interface and a powerful tool, which does not make any strain on your computer. During our tests, there were no errors, bugs or crashes registered and the program didn't slow down our PC. Compare It!
