Greece's government said on Monday that it will make available the first of a €7.5bn (£5.6bn) tranche of aid promised to countries in the euro zone, in a bid to restore confidence and to get its economy moving again. Greece has been heavily dependent on international aid in recent months, with the bailout from its creditors at a virtual standstill because it has not been able to make repayments. The EU/IMF deal, which won approval last month, includes an additional €1bn of aid to be disbursed from 6 March, and another €3bn in 2016. "The third disbursement will be made on 6 March," the finance ministry said in a statement on its website. The first two tranches "remained with the banking system to maintain liquidity of institutions", it said. The government already announced that €1.5bn worth of aid would be dispensed on 6 March, and the last €2.5bn of aid to be disbursed in the first quarter of the year. "In the coming days, the ministry will continue to work on which assets will be put under the control of the institutions," it added. The government has sold a wide range of assets in the past months to raise money, with the aim of restoring the credibility of the state. It also decided to close a state-owned law firm, whose 75 employees, including its entire staff of 60 lawyers, will receive one month's salary. The ministry said that the firm, Naoussa, had "experienced significant losses as a result of restructuring of national debt portfolios".Q: HDFS new-fs doesn't accept -f flag I'm running the following command on my local cluster: hdfs dfs -mkdir -p /user/hdfs/tmp/ This runs successfully, but when I try to do the same with a parallelized job with YARN, I get an error: New FS does not have storage.reclaim-bytes property set.
