1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a polarization-conversion sheet and a manufacturing method of the sheet. 2. Description of the Related Art In recent years, energy saving and environmental protection are increasingly required for light sources used in papermaking, printing, finishing, white-board and so on. Further, the higher speed and higher output of a copying machine and an electrostatic recording system is also desired in order to reduce paper consumption and toner consumption. In order to realize these requests, it is important to obtain a light source that is reliable in intensity and stable in light emission. As a light source for a reflection type exposure system, organic electroluminescent (EL) devices and light-emitting diodes (LED) are given. Each of these light-emitting devices is, however, deficient in intensity and durability. Especially, the organic EL devices are deficient in durability. As a light source for the reflection type exposure system, in order to realize the higher speed and higher output, a planar light source is demanded. The planar light source, which has a light output of a predetermined level, is most suitable for a full-color exposure system. Accordingly, if the light from the planar light source is reflected on a photo-sensitive sheet, an image cannot be formed on the sheet. As a solution of this problem, Japanese Patent Application Laid-Open No. 2004-260252 describes a polarization-conversion sheet. The polarization-conversion sheet has a layer that comprises colloidal particles and a fluorescent substance. On a surface of the layer, a dichroic mirror is formed that reflects a light in the predetermined direction and allows a light in the direction perpendicular to the predetermined direction to pass. Since the reflection in the plane of the polarization-conversion sheet (the direction of polarization of a light reflected by the dichroic mirror) is inhibited, a light from a light source is efficiently guided to the direction of a photo-sensitive sheet without a loss. Accordingly, a higher speed and a higher output can be realized without lowering the intensity of the light. As described above, the light emitted from the light source is reflected by the dichroic mirror, and the reflected light is directed to the photo-sensitive sheet. Therefore, the dichroic mirror needs to be cleaned. If dust is adhered on the dichroic mirror, the dust is reflected by the dichroic mirror. Accordingly, the dust cannot be cleaned.

Why Alaska? The land of your ancestors (kinda) Alaska is the second-largest state in the U.S., as well as the largest state not located in the contiguous 48 states. It's a territory of the U.S. (a sort of state-without-borders) which has a seat at the U.N. Much of Alaska is wilderness, and the only people in the area are native Alaskans. (Alaska is inhabited by three major aboriginal groups: Tlingit, Athabaskan and Yup'ik.) Outside of the capital, Anchorage, there is a coastal town called Seward – and it's pretty important to the state's economy. Highlights Above everything else, the Alaska State Museum is a must-see. The Gold Nugget, the largest gold nugget ever found in the US, is a major attraction. Prince William Sound – a relatively pristine part of the Southeast – is an ecotourist destination. Folsom State Recreation Area is a pristine 6,400-acre lake and forest park in Fairbanks. Entertainment Look for shows on the "Museum Stage" in the Alaska State Museum. You can book a musical performance by remote control. The state's only full-time opera company, Alaska Opera, performs at the Alaska Center for the Performing Arts in Juneau. Alaska has two major annual festivals: the Days of '98 festival in Ketchikan (last weekend in July), and the Alaska State Fair in Anchorage (last week in August). Visitor Most Alaska attractions have a fee, but the Alaska Native Heritage Center in Anchorage has a free admission, as does the Alaska State Museum. There are 3 entrances to Alaska: by air, by rail and by boat. If you fly in from another state, you'll be given a passport stamp as proof of entry. If you arrive by boat, your valid passport is all the proof you'll need. If you fly in, you'll need to pay to park at one of the big airports, but most of the others have free parking. Lodging Most of the best lodging in Alaska can be found in Anchorage. Be sure to book well in advance, as the demand for hotels is phenomenal.
