Back to the past: Art Nouveau in Morocco 26th June 2016 | Paris | the francophonie For the next European festival of the art of the XIXth century, the Francophonie will showcase the art and craft from Morocco, through various exhibitions of paintings, drawings, works on paper, graphic works, prints, music, texts and films. The art exhibitions will run from June 20 to June 26, 2016. The festival will be held at the Villepinte library and the pavilion Am Mohammedia, as well as in the venues of the International Salon de l'Harmonie in Rabat, the George V Private Museum of Arts in Tangier, the Queen Amina Museum of Modern Art in Marrakesh, the Dar Assida Museum of Moroccan Art, the Mediterranean Institute of Art, the National Museum of Africa in Rabat, and the municipal library in Kenitra. This is the first time that Morocco is participating in a Festival of the Francophonie. About the event: The Festival of the Art of the 19th and 20th centuries in Morocco is the third edition of the Francophonie for museums and archives, which gathers artists and culture professionals from all over the world. It will present a selection of the great artistic expressions of Morocco: paintings, textiles, engravings, drawings, prints, graphic works, ceramics, metal work, manuscripts, etc. including an exhibition by the Sogra art school of Rabat. The festival intends to address the vast artistic heritage of Morocco through the eyes of young artists, who have had the opportunity to visit European museums and archives. The art of their homeland will be given a new perspective. The artists of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries were able to create their work thanks to the protection of their masters, under the name of the "El Jedida" ("The Liberation") as defined by Mohammed Benamor in the twentieth century. This group of artists, who are also called "The Children of the Liberation" or "The National Artists of the first period" ("Vâkhs of the First Time"), consists of almost three hundred artists from various backgrounds (painter, sculptor, printmaker, engraver, etc.), whose works are still stored in various museums and private collections all over the country

I still love The Master. And I loved Spring Breakers. No plan to see Little Miss Sunshine before it releases. There is just no time. Besides, I have to plan my summer movies...

That almost narrows it down to three movies, but I have a couple of others as recommendations. I like...

- Before I Fall
- Mr. Turner
- Rust and Bone

I was thinking something around Rent and Turner and Spring Breakers would have been easily out of my top 10 movies of the year, and that's saying a lot. I mean, I love and love A Serious Man. And Boyhood. And many others. But these two movies have pushed me past them.

Before I Fall is based on the life of poet Ed Begley Jr. who killed himself in 1996. I'm not a huge, dramatic film person myself, but in this case I was turned off to it by the performance from the always classic Bryce Dallas Howard. It's got this typical Romeo and Juliet-ish thing happening, where it feels like every girl is falling in love with every guy. I could never get into the movie, and I always imagine my wife saying, "Ohhhhh, what's her deal?" My wife saw it the other day, and said it was about the pain of life and it was awesome. Even to me, it was just old. That's a problematic word to use when I critique women's movies, but with the sad and tragic death and destruction of two people in it, it falls into that category.

The Master is a film about an eccentric filmmaker in

Q: Bash script to compare two directories and return results I have two folders, FolderA and FolderB, which contain the same number of files (exactly). I would like to create a bash script to compare the two directories using file timestamp and then return the results of this comparison in a.txt file. Any help is much appreciated! Thanks in advance. Using the following command, I can return the number of files and the foldersize from FolderA: du -sha./FolderA | sed's/^ \[0-9\][0-9]\ $\1/' | sort | uniq -c Edit: Sample outputs: Duplicate | FolderSize 1 | 562Mb My question is how would I create a bash script using the output above to print the file path (FolderB) to a file (filepath
