Who's to blame? A lot of people are now blaming the FIFA development team on what's going wrong in the game. One of the major reasons why FIFA 2K18 has received so much negative reviews are the limited number of modes compared to FIFA 17, including "My Club," "My Career," "The Journey" and "FUT Champions." FIFA 2K18 also does not have the comprehensive license model that other sports games have. The developers are going through a rough patch. Valve has also received some negative reviews for the PC version of the game. The bugs included are Unreasonable difficulty level MyCareer In MyCareer mode, players are only limited to performing in the following modes, including: Match Simulation; Training; Practice; Friendly; Challenge; MyClub; MyClub Draft; MyClub There is no other mode available that players have not tried and tested yet. There are plenty of cases where players found flaws in the game which could have been avoided by waiting for a bug fix. The fact that the game has bugs that can be found within minutes of playing the game is an indication of how immature the development process of the game is. And now the FIFA development team is in a state of panic. It is not correct to say that the game developers are to blame for the current state of FIFA 2K18. What we can do?

EA Sports have taken everything that made FIFA 17 and improved it with FIFA 19. The first thing that really strikes you is the FIFA Ultimate Team, not only does it have more ways to progress, it also seems more immersive. Also added is the tactical changes in terms of set pieces and corner kicks. This means that the games get more exciting. Something that EA haven't forgot to build in is that two of the main problems with the game are, the aim assist and the stamina. EA have done their best to address these issues and build in a better to play style. The gameplay in FIFA 19 is very similar to FIFA 18, this may be a concern to some. My favourite thing about #ruddingham is walking through that gorgeous park, with the fields on one side and the river on the other. This was taken on one of my recent visits. We've had a great few weeks up in the park. There was a full moon, so the views across the field to the far hills and to the river on the other side were absolutely stunning. I spent a couple of hours in the gazebo. There are three older gentlemen who look after the area - they do fantastic work collecting the fallen leaves and ensuring that the sand is kept clear. The weather has been pretty bad of late - the first year for many years that we've not seen leaves on the trees before the end of October. But I suppose that it's part of the cycles of nature. We will be glad to see the back of cold weather, and of course I can't wait to get my spring garden going. I'm wanting to grow more flowers and a few vegetables for eating. So, fingers crossed for some warm weather! Make sure you share your photos with me on the Ruddingham Facebook page. I'm a fifty something wife and mother. I'm lucky enough to live in the beautiful south of England. When I'm not working, I'm busy taking photos of the wildlife in my garden, walking in the beautiful local countryside, or watching the birds in my garden.
