Creating a new document in Photoshop Many people begin editing images in Photoshop by creating a new document, rather than by opening an existing image. This technique can be a great way to start a design, but using an existing image works just as well. To create a new document, use the New Document window by choosing File⇒New. The New Document window opens, shown in Figure 2-3. This window has some very helpful options for when you need to import an image or change an existing image. DOVER, Del. -- A 6-year-old boy who admitted he shot his 6-year-old sister to punish her for getting a new bike by the end of the year was given less than two years in prison and one of the longest sentences that Delaware lawmakers have seen in recent history, News Journal staff reports. Justice Secretary Cheryl Dinolfo and the prosecutor who handled the case against the boy appealed to the state Supreme Court, saying they were seeking a longer sentence because a second child, a 3-year-old girl, and the boy's mother were also present during the shooting. The boy was sentenced to a minimum of five years and up to 20 years under a juvenile justice law, so that no child receives a sentence of fewer than three years in Delaware, the state's highest court said. The three-year minimum sentence was not applied because the boy was a juvenile at the time of the crime. He was 10 when he shot his sister on June 28, 2014, at their home in Chester, Delaware. The boy's mother, Sharon Fletcher, was sentenced to five to 10 years in prison. His father was given four to nine years and his brother was sentenced to two to five years. Kathleen Ferrier, who defended the boy and the other family members, said the sentence was appropriate because of the violent nature of the crime, as well as because the boy had pleaded guilty. Ferrier, who is now a private criminal defense attorney, said she felt she had no choice but to accept a plea bargain. "I think for me it was probably one of the least stressful days of my entire career," she said. "Even though I had a client, [the family] were very accepting of it." As for the other charges, the boy admitted to attempted second-degree murder, third-degree assault, endangering the welfare of a child and reckless endangering. The charges stemmed from a June 2014 incident in which the boy and his sister were riding a bicycle in the neighborhood, when he shot his sister five times in the back and the lower back with a revolver. Police arrived to find her in critical condition in a field. Police said the parents told them the boy's father brought the gun to the house and handed it to the boy because he was angry about losing his job as a parking attendant and losing his home.
