Suppose I want to define an equation that applies to any function  $f :: \text{Int} \rightarrow \text{Int}$ , to the fact that  $f\ x = x$ , when  $x$  is a positive integer. So I want an expression like  $f\ x == x$  for all  $x \in \mathbb{N}$  How do I write it? A: You can write an is-any function that works like  $a = f\ a$ , where  $f$  is an arbitrary function:  $\text{isAny} :: (a \rightarrow \text{Constraint}) \rightarrow \text{Bool}$   $\text{isAny}$

fs = any (fs. const ()) Then you can use it as follows: *Main> :t it it :: IsAny (t a -> t a) *Main> isAny ( -> n == n) False *Main> isAny ( -> n == n + 1) True The problem is that this fails if your constraint function, f in f x == x for all x ∈ ℕ, returns an answer that it knows to be false, i.e. you want False for f n == True for all n. Your only way to cover this case would be to define it explicitly: isAny' :: (a -> Constraint) -> (a -> Bool) -> IsAny (t a -> t a) isAny' fs p = any (fs. const p) US-backed forces have captured Raqqa, the former seat of ISIS' caliphate, from the terror group in d0c515b9f4

By becoming a Mentee, you'll work one-on-one with a senior faculty member who will guide you in your academic, career, and personal development. The mentee role is open to all students. Preference is given to MSU credit seniors, as well as AP, IB, and other similar coursework majors. Once accepted into the mentoring program, each participant will be placed with a specific faculty member for his or her academic and mentoring needs. Mentors are placed on a one-year rotating basis
