I am working on a project that involves implementing an Active Shape Model, using the CGAL library. I want to apply this model to images in real time. I tried to use the demo of the ASM that comes with the library: (instead of the demos that come from the python bindings of the library). The problem is that the algorithm is too slow (about 20 milliseconds per frame on my system). I think it is due to the fact that the Open Source version of the library is not optimized for speed yet, since the only C++ version of the ASM demo available is more than 12 years old. I am using some image processing toolkits to detect the relevant points on an image, so they are around 10'000 and that is not a big deal. I would like to know if there are any faster implementations of this algorithm, which I can use. Any help is appreciated. A: I found a library called ASMshape that seems to provide an interface to ASM. It seems to be optimized for real-time ASM applications. Thanks. I have no luck in that regard. Launch Control Crack +

Launch Control Activation Code is a simple, easy-to-use application designed to save you time. Simply press Ctrl + Space in order to trigger it, enter the app's name and Launch Control will find it instantly. In order to locate the apps, it relies on the startup folder, as well as other locations, which are automatically indexed. If you have many apps installed on your computer, Launch Control will be able to find them all. The app lists a number of apps, but it doesn't detect the environment (Linux, Windows, Apple), so this feature will work only with the apps installed on your PC. In order to prevent your files and other data from being deleted or lost, the "Backups" button has been added. The "Files" button can be used to create a backup of your documents. You can easily find your app and find it again without digging through all the files. Launch Control is an application that can be used for browsing, searching and launching apps. Is a must have for Mac users, at least for design and UX lovers, since it saves a lot of time. I figure, with no one else giving it a look, I might as well make it clear that here is the download link:1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a flow-rate measuring apparatus and method for measuring a flow rate of a fluid flowing through a pipeline. 2. Description of the Related Art A flow-rate measuring apparatus and method for measuring a flow rate of a fluid flowing through a pipeline by detecting a mass of the fluid (diameter of the fluid droplets) have been used. For example, in a flow-rate measuring apparatus as disclosed in Japanese Patent Application Laid-Open No. 2003-248392, a mass of a fluid is detected by a microwave sensor, and a gas flow rate is calculated based on the detected mass of the fluid. However, when a mass of a fluid to be measured is significantly smaller than that of an air flow (gas flow) other than the fluid, measurement errors occur due to the influence of the air flow. Therefore, Japanese Patent Application Laid-Open No. 2003-248392 does not disclose a method for measuring a flow rate of a fluid with a mass smaller than that of an air flow (gas flow). Moreover, a method in which an air flow is shut off during measurement of a flow rate of a fluid is also disclosed in Japanese Patent Application Laid-Open No. 2003-248392.We have developed, and continue to make, a variety of measurement devices for using in physical testing. Our work with them has allowed us to explore many of the issues in their design. This research extends out from the instrument specific hardware development to the design of
