Sunday, November 25, 2007 Olde Oak Grove Today, we visited Olde Oak Grove. This little grove was on that were we camped. We were not allowed to camp overnight so we spent about two hours there. We sat on the ground in one area. I asked Brett if she wanted to look at the train engine. She immediately said yes. We got to look at all the engine parts. We went to Olde Oak Grove on October 21st, 2007. So, this is my Grandson, Seth Warren's story about olde oak grove. "Once upon a time, there were two families, Smith and Howells. One lived at Apple Hill, near to the apple orchards. The other family lived in the village, on and around the main road. The people of Apple Hill and the village were good friends with the Howells. They helped each other with trips to town and of course the most of their horses and cows. One day, Seth, the Howells' little boy, decided he wanted a pony. His family was big, however, and they were told his little sister, Tressa, would have to have a pony. Since that was the Howells' farm, Tressa's pony, Willie, was coming to them. There were problems, though. He was wild and more than a little spoiled. He had been raised on a farm far away, so he did not know how to be with other horses. He did not trust people at all and was a handful. Tressa was no picnic, either. But, this is the kind of situation in which a true friend always turns up. Her name was Pamela Walker. She had come to Apple Hill and, at first, the Howells were unsure about buying her. She didn't have a saddle, or bridle, or blanket, or anything at all. Then she started to act quite friendly with Willy. And, Willie started to trust her. One day, he followed her on his own into
