management, engineering, and business. it is extremely painful for her to see people get hurt. I offered my support, but she didn't want me there. They knew she would be afraid to use her powers after what had happened. But there was another reason. There was one person in fingers - to kill him. It was only a moment, and then she fell to the ground, her hands outstretched in front of her. I could see that she was fighting to stay in control. I ran towards her. She was already struggling to breathe. She looked up at me, shaking her head. I had assumed, at first, that it was to say no. I was wrong. It was just the movement of her head. She was shaking her head because she had heard the name. Because she wanted me to know it. Because that was the one thing she couldn't say out loud. 'You'll be safe with me,' I said. 'You'll
