* See Photoshop CS5 for Digital Photographers for more information about the features of Photoshop CS5. * If you don't have Photoshop, check out the online tutorial ****. This chapter covers the following Photoshop features: * Levels * Curves * Selecting and Using the Brush * Painting * Healing and Reducing Images * Sharpening * Using Smart Objects ## Adjusting the Brightness and Contrast Adjusting a photo's brightness and contrast is a great way to restore a photo that looks too bright or too dark. See Figure 10-1 for an example. FIGURE 10-1: Adjusting the brightness and contrast of an image can make it look more pleasing. The first step is to click the Enhance Adjustments option on the Options bar or press Ctrl+E (Windows) or Command+E (Mac OS). Either way, the Adjustments panel opens, as shown in Figure 10-2. Use the panel's sliders to adjust the image's brightness and contrast. FIGURE 10-2: The Adjustments panel contains sliders for adjusting the brightness and contrast of an image. If you want to take a step back and tweak the image just a bit, you can use the Enhance Adjustment Brush to paint over the image (as shown in Figure 10-3). When you're happy with the result, press Ctrl+D (Windows) or Command+D (Mac) to deselect the image, or press Ctrl+Backspace (Windows) or Command+Backspace (Mac) to cancel the brush's work. FIGURE 10-3: Use the Adjustment Brush to adjust the brightness and contrast of an image. ## Adjusting the Color The options for adjusting the overall color of an image vary depending on your version of Photoshop. In Figure 10-4, the middle panel shows the Auto option; this option fills the image with color based on the particular photo's subject and the overall lighting in the scene. Choose another option to adjust the color a bit, such as the Color Balance option, shown in the middle panel in Figure 10-5. This option has many variations. You can use the buttons at the bottom of the panel to quickly access color-correction presets such as the

The invention relates to an elongated wall construction made of wall studs and wall panels. A similar system of wall construction is known from WO 95/07079. According to this publication the elongated wall studs each comprise a flange and a head protruding outwardly from the flange, the flange of a first wall stud being disposed on the flange of a second wall stud and the heads of the wall studs being each bolted to the respective flange. The wall stud according to WO 95/07079 comprises a generally cylindrical head, this head having a lower end disposed in a sleeve that can be fixed in a screw stud made of insulating material. In this way it is possible to place a cylindrical lamp post between adjacent wall studs. However, fixing the lamp post in a layer of insulating material is complicated. For each lamp post it is necessary to fix an anchoring sleeve between the flange of the screw stud and the flange of the wall stud. An object of the present invention is to provide an elongated wall construction in which wall panels can be fixed in elongated wall studs which are positioned at the horizontal center line of the wall.

Expression pattern of vascular endothelial growth factor in human melanoma cells: modulation of apoptotic activity. Vascular endothelial growth factor (VEGF) has recently been isolated and purified from various human and avian sources and sequenced. The VEGF protein appears to play a pivotal role in the regulation of both physiological and pathological angiogenesis. Vascular endothelial growth factor binds to and activates tyrosine kinase receptors, including VEGF receptors (VEGFR)-1 and VEGFR-2. In this paper, we have analyzed the expression pattern of VEGF protein and the VEGFR-1 and VEGFR-2 receptor protein in human melanoma cells by immunohistochemistry, flow cytometry, and Western blot analysis. In addition, we investigated the modulation of apoptotic activity in human melanoma cells by VEGF, mainly in relation to the state of cell differentiation. We observed strong immunostaining of VEGF and VEGFR-2 in the cytoplasm of melanoma cells and we also found high levels of the VEGF protein in the culture medium of melanoma cells. The pattern of VEGFR-1 expression was more homogeneous, with strong staining of melanoma cells, in agreement with flow

Q: How to search for a word or string in TextPad I've got a HTML document with a row of names in it and I want to search and replace all the names with first names and last names. When I search for "Christine" or even "Christine_", it replaces all of them, but when I search for "^Christine", it doesn't seem to work. A: Unless there is a _ after the name, you don't want to match it as a substring, but as a standalone term. You use ^Christine to match "Christine" at the beginning of the line. If you have a _, you must use two characters: \_Christine
